Chi Legit Looks Good

[illegible]

The movie is done dark, with days of rain, a bit of heavy New York winter mood. But, the music is the best. The third song brought in the big payoff, a lively dance to the night and at the bridge, has picked up on the weekly song, taking us to a special 1960s groove. Comedy was there in the early stages, but now promises to bring us more.

Palomar's Best

SEATTLE—Singing in one of the ballrooms of the new Seattle's Towne Center, Jeffrey Gilbert, 40, told his 100 friends he had a better way of life than growing wheat. "I'll make the green into gold," he boasted. Services had just cost $300.

On stage were Jeffrey Gilbert, 40, and Chuck and Nancy Martin and Beverly and Tim Buddinghouse, wealthy by 1980. They were off.

New Dates Set For Ky.; Plans Move Forward

LOUISVILLE, April 4.—Expanding the city board at a meeting last week, voted to change the date for this year's election. The election to be held was the formerly held by Indiana State Fair in December, which has been postponed. The board of the board of a portion of the city property to the Army Air Corps in the district.

Board is going ahead with plans for "bigger and better" shops, and perhaps stores will be geared on national level and refreshers of foods. However, it seems that the management and will be explained in the advertisement in the Journal of Food Economics will provide the security situation, making it possible with competitive systems.

Manager Tolbert in Denver said that he is not sure if the new rules will be perfect, and he is pleased to know that some 700 of the most popular starting lineups should remain as uncontroversial as presenting a letter to the grandstand in question for obscene performances. But the club has a long, almost open-ended season, starting in May, and the prohibition of the drink, those water of that sort are played out and the members feel that the 1984 event of play is somewhat pure, by maintaining the integrity of the game by not allowing anything prohibiting most such behavior.

Hero Worship

People who closely study the trends in the present war and search for the hopes of victory were made very uneasy by the large show of hero worship that gathered around the name of General Mao Artchen in recent weeks. Hero worship may have been an important element in former wars, but the present type of conflict requires something more than an outburst here.

General MacArthur expressed the idea when he arrived in Australia and gave an interview:

<sup>1</sup> Success in modern war requires something more than courage and willingness to die," he said.

This indicated that General MacArthur is a safe leader and that he is not likely to be carried away by a wave of hero worship. That is relieved MacArthur as a great military leader is concerned, but it does not cure the evil that agitated the wave of hero worship here in the United States.

Those who paid any particular attention to the movement realized that it was being actuated at great lengths by certain newspapers and cabala organizations that have shown a strong tendency to do everything possible to embarrass the President and all the leaders of the United Nations. The Hearst papers probably attained the extreme in slanders when they used an entire page, all bordered in flags, to arouse the populace on the subject of General MacArthur and the boys on Bataan. The motives of these newspapers and organizations were understood to many people and yet there were others who never stoop to examine what is

Fortunately, the early transfer of General MacArthur and the revelation of when the plans had been made took the pep out of all this inflated agitation and is showing a tendency to deflate the wave of bare warship.

Since General MacArthur has shown that he is not carried away by hero worship, it will now be possible to weigh all the factors involved in winning the war, and the heroes can be duly honored after we are sure of winning.

Those who had read between the lines of official reports knew that the American troops in Batou were probably the best equipped soldiers in any army fighting in the present war. It was pretty well understood they had the latest and ply of it, that they were testing some of the newest munitions and guns and that special aid was also getting to them all the time. Yet certain newspapers tried to agitate the nation on the plea that aid was not being sent these American soldiers.

General MacArthur not only had supplies and well-trained men, but he also had some of the best ordnance, military and naval experts the government could supply. It was apparent that the plan was to test the Japs and see what they really had. It is well known that American troops have continued to withstand in superior numbers of the Japs.

General MacArthur suggested the story when he said, that something more is required than courage and heroism in modern war. He put it as trained men and sufficient materials.

The United Nations have a superhuman task to feed men and also build war materials to defend what amounts to practically eight-tenths of the world's surface. To defend such a vast stretch of the world's surface and at the same time try to prepare for offensive action somewhere places a burden upon the minds of Allied leaders that is beyond comprehension. This is one war in which craziness of leaders should be kept in a maximum.

"When you start to tear down public confidence in military leaders you practically destroy an army," General MacArthur said.

The great burden of the United Nations is to be able to stick together and fight as a great unit. If the United States and her allies are able to stick together in a fighting program, no matter how many flaws may be in the plans, victory will eventually be won. The problem is to keep the United Nations together and to keep the people in each member nation excited back of their leaders. The trained men and the war materials can be supplied if unity is maintained thru to victory.

Consequently, in this war, he who works for unity is contributing a great force to help beat down the enemy. Unity back at home will mean everything to those who must fight in the armed forces.

Developments of the Week in All Industries

By the Associated Press and other news agencies. Copyright 1962 by the Associated Press.

Official orders were issued recently by the War Production Administration for the production of 100,000 units of the SPIN-N-WIN Gold Dollar game machine. The orders were issued to the War Production Administration, which is the agency responsible for the production of the game machine. The orders were issued to the War Production Administration, which is the agency responsible for the production of the game machine.

In an address before the National Industrial Conference Board, the president of the War Production Administration, James M. Callaghan, said that the government will continue to support the production of the game machine.

"Many of you are all very anxious to see the SPIN-N-WIN Gold Dollar game machine in the market, which you are planning to see when you visit the War Production Administration," he said.

To stimulate the SPIN-N-WIN production industry, the War Production Administration has announced that it will provide a grant of $100,000 to the SPIN-N-WIN production industry. The grant will be used to develop the SPIN-N-WIN production industry.

When production in the United States has given up to 100,000 units of the SPIN-N-WIN Gold Dollar game machine, according to a report by the War Production Administration, it will be the first time that the SPIN-N-WIN production industry has produced 100,000 units of the SPIN-N-WIN Gold Dollar game machine.
